Introduction

This directory describes the library resources of Saskatchewan libraries, up-dating the 1984 edition. The directory is a listing of the public and regional libraries, school libraries, college and university libraries and special libraries in the province of Saskatchewan. It also provides some other relevant information for librarians, such as library schools in Canada, provincial and national library associations in Canada, and provincial libraries in Canada. The directory includes various indexes; libraries by name, college and university libraries, public and regional libraries, special libraries, government libraries and school libraries.

General arrangement

The directory is divided in three sections. Section one consists of Saskatchewan libraries arranged geographically by city or town, and under each city or town, alphabetically by name. Branch libraries of city and regional libraries are listed under the library system of which they are a part. The "Libraries by name" index can be used to locate these regional library systems. Each entry in the directory is classified by a symbol, or symbols. For an explanation see the key to the symbols on page iv. Section two consists of some general information for librarians, and section three, various indexes.

Information details

In most cases the entry contains the following information:

- name of sponsoring organization, library symbol, and name of library, including address, postal code and date of establishment;
- telephone, Envoy 100 (Electronic mail), TWX or Fax numbers (if any);
- person in charge and title of person in charge;
- collection - number of books, periodicals or audio visual material;
- subject interest and special collections;
- special services provided by the library;
- publications (if any); and
- branch libraries.

Sources of information used

Questionnaires were sent to every library listed in the directory. The questionnaires returned were the main source for the information given in the directory. In cases where the original questionnaire or follow-up requests were unanswered, information from other sources, such as library directories, reference books and telephone directories, were used.

Provincial Library staff is grateful to all Saskatchewan libraries for their generous help in supplying information either through questionnaires or through telephone contacts, and to individuals and organizations who have assisted in the task of compiling this directory. In a compilation of this nature there are bound to be some errors and omissions which should be brought to the attention of the Provincial Library by filing Notification of Change Form which is included in your copy of the directory.

Libraries wishing to be included in this directory should contact – Ved Arora, Head, Bibliographic Services at the Provincial Library (787-2980).
